Annie Bartosz lost her twin brother, Jack, to cancer in 2012. Now, she is working to unite the country with Gold In September, known as G9. With gold (G) and September (9) the nationally recognized color and month for childhood cancer, G9 is a non-profit dedicated to growing gold awareness and increasing funding for pediatric cancer research and new treatments. In 2017, G9 committed $800,000 to fund Early Phase Clinical Trials for childhood cancer research initiatives nationwide.

Annie and G9 believe there is hope and everyone can be part of the solution to help every child, everywhere by coloring the world gold and taking action.

DID YOU KNOW:
40,000 KIDS
are actively battling cancer right now?

*"We can't win the battle against childhood cancer with only the wounded, that's like trying to win
a war with only the wounded,"*

—Annie Bartosz.
